Foundation Subject

Geography

Today in Geography you are going to recap your knowledge all about the countries of the United Kingdom. We are then going to learn some facts about these places. For extra information about these places from children who live there click this video link. You then get to make a poster all about your chosen country this could be: England, Scotland, Wales or Northern Ireland. The choice is up to you.

Watch the link for the lesson today. Miss Banfield's poster is at the end of the video as an example.

Question for the day

Yesterdays answer: Dinosaurs were around in a period of time called the Mesozoic Era this spanned 160 million years and is divided into three consecutive geologic time periods (which means one after the other based on the rocks in which their fossils were found).

They are the Triassic, Jurassic and the Cretaceous periods. You may know one of them because of a very famous film series, click here for a clue for the one I'm talking about...

So, we know about dinosaurs from looking at fossils, but which dinosaur's skeleton used to be in the Natural History Museum in London's great hall before it was replaced by the Blue Whale?
